Gentlemen:

I am a free lance writer for the New York Times and other metropolitan papers and would like to interview some member of your organization on the development and artistic excellence of American coinage for the purpose of working up a special feature article on the subject.

I noted with interest in the morning World several weeks ago the praise bestowed by Cecil Thomas, the English sculptor, upon your international exhibition of medals and it seems to me that your work warrants wider publicity.

Very truly yours,

Herbert S. Allan
